Talk Time

- Lions live in groups called prides. They work together for food and to protect each other. Just as Lions watch over the pride, this week, you will be watching over your homes to help save energy for the next two weeks to help conserve.
 - There are simple ways that Scouts can have a significant impact on the environment. Although the actions may seem small and insignificant on an individual level, by working together we can have a big impact.
 - Only one percent of the Earth's water resources are useable for drinking - the rest is permanently frozen or salt water. It is critical that everyone conserve water all the time.
 - Simple habits can lead to big savings for the environment and for your parents. Turning off the lights when leaving any room and leaving the door open only long enough to go through it is a great place to start!
- Den business
- Sharing time

Activities

- Activity 1: Visitor
- Activity 2: Emergency Preparedness Game

Closing

- Scout Law
- Reflect on “A Scout is Helpful.” Tie “helpful” back to the community visitor.
